They were then introduced into a brief history of theatre and the importance of drama and theatre in education, TIE, or Theatre in Education, is the name given to a particular kind of theatre, practised by professional drama companies, or TIE teams, which work specifically in educational projects to be devised at schools. DIE, or Drama in Education, is the term applied to the practise and use of drama in the classroom, as both subject and method. It can be introduced to deliver any aspect of the curriculum, often to explore cross curricular aspects; in contrast to TIE, it relies upon the work of teachers, not actors. The remaining sessions were marked with two activities. The first one being a Memory game. Students from roll numbers 1-21 were involved in a game of memory. One student will say a proper / common noun and the others were to add a new noun after the previous one. In this way a chain of nouns were to remembered and said in order. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

ROLE OF VALUES

Speaker: Prof. J.P. Singh
Retd Former Director, Senior Professor,
Maharaja Surajmal Institute

Our value is the sum of our values. Values are defined as something which are desirable and worthy of esteem for their own sake. Human values are defined as those values which help human beings to live in harmony with the world. The age that we live in, constantly tests us.

A talk regarding "ROLE OF VALUES" was conducted for the students of B.Ed program of MAHARAJA SURAJMAL INSTITUTE on 29th May 2020. The speaker for the talk was Prof. J.P. Singh, Retd. Former Director, Senior Professor, Maharaja Surajmal Institute organized by  Dr. Poonam Beniwal and Dr. Vanita Anand. 104 students of B.Ed program first year and second year attended the session.

The session started with a welcome note by the student organizers Pearl and Tanvi followed by the talk by Prof. J.P. Singh who about the problems and experiences of day-to-day life and his professional journey while highlighting the importance of values in a person's life.

He discussed the three most important aspects of human life – food, clothing and shelter and how we end up judging people based on these aspects. Sir, while giving motivating examples, explained about the difference between what is right and what is wrong and how one can differentiate between the two. Prof. J.P. Singh very efficiently explained to the students about the meaning of morals and values. Sir very rightly stated that the things which make one feel wrong are the same things which will also make others feel bad as well. Also, it is not necessary as to what is wrong or right for one person may not be the same for the other person as there is no measuring instrument to measure what is right and what is wrong. Sir also highlighted the importance of perspective. He stated that it is not necessary that our perspective is always right and instead we must try to see the situation from another person's perspective before concluding a situation.  He shared his life experiences with respect to the morals, ethics and values to enlighten the students and guide them to choose the right path in life. The example of the present situation of Covid and black marketing in the medical sector which sir shared showed how the ethical and moral values have deteriorated in the present times. While giving his experience with the college teachers and students, he also explained that it is not the other person who will tell us about our morals and values, instead the values, ethics and morals are self-inflicted and self-chosen and we should be our own judge. Sir even highlighted the role of women in society and how the women are playing an important role in inculcating morals and ethics in the present and future generation.

Prof. Singh, while concluding the talk, said that our role as future teachers is very important because we as teachers are the initial guides of our students who will become our own reflection in future. Thus, it becomes the responsibility of the teacher to teach the right values to their students.

The session was concluded by Shashi with a vote of thanks to the speaker.

16) Stress Management Webinar                                    Dated:June 4,2021

Ever since the country was plunged into nation-wide lockdown due to the impact of Covid-19 virus, stress levels have been undoubtedly high in almost all citizens. To combat stress in students, an online webinar on Stress Management was organized by Maharaja Surajmal Institute for its BCA students. The webinar was held on 4th June, 2021 and commenced from 10a.m. on an online platform. We were joined by a distinguished guest, Dr. Lovleen Malhotra ma'am, who was the eminent speaker of the session.

The session started out with an introduction and a welcome speech given to our guest, by student Jasmehr Kaur Bhatia. Then Ms. Lovleen kickstarted the session by asking what sort of psychological issues or mental health problems, like anxiety or stress, were the students facing. To this they promptly replied, that they were facing obstacles such as long hours of online classes throughout the week, procrastination, being cooped up under the same roof due to lockdown, and suffering the loss of a close one due to Covid. She had a very optimistic approach while answering all the students' queries and emphasized on moving on from the past and prioritizing the present, living it to the fullest. She discussed how having an irregular sleep cycle can take a heavy toll on one's physical as well as mental health. Bringing the sleep cycle back on track, and getting a good eight hours of sleep each night can prove to be instrumental in a good recovery, and help clear the head. She also commented on unhealthy eating habits of today's generation and how deeply they can affect us. She pointed out some common practices like skipping meals, binge eating, having midnight meals, not consuming enough fruits and vegetables as key problems in most people's lifestyle. She proceeded to warn us about the negative effects of social media, and how scrolling mindlessly through your feeds all day can cause loss of concentration and aids procrastination. She encouraged students to focus more on their real lives, have an exercise regime, play outdoors once it is safe to do so, etc. instead of spending more time on your mobile phone than necessary. Playing games, especially with friends, could prove to be a real stressbuster too, she said, as long as there are fair restrictions on the time limit. Overthinking, a common practice among individuals is more inclined to be personality trait than a side-effect of stress, according to ma'am. It can be avoided by incorporating mind-clearing habits in one's life, such as meditating, getting a fresh breath of air in a park or even a terrace, listening to good music and having a fun hobby to distract yourself with. These tips also help expel negative thoughts from the mind and inculcating these good habits promote positive thinking. Apart from students, teachers were also eagerly participating in the online seminar and enquiring about how they can help with students' well-being and mental health. She ended the session by stressing on the importance of loving yourself and keeping an optimistic mindset in the long run.

After concluding the session, Ms. Lovleen Malhotra was offered a vote of thanks from one of the students, Akshat Jain, on behalf of the whole institute. All the attendees greatly benefitted from the seminar and expressed their gratitude to the speaker. The session ended on a positive note and the main takeaway was to live in the present and not dwell on the past.

The speaker for the talk was Prof. Chandra Bhushan Sharma. . He served as the Chairman of the National Institute of Open Schooling (NIOS) from April 2015 to April 2020. During his leadership the NIOS experienced a complete turnaround, with many landmark new initiatives. He is the recipient of the President's Award for "Commendable Contribution to Digital Initiatives" during the National Convention on Digital Initiatives for Higher Education. Recognizing his talent and contributions, the Government of India had assigned the responsibility of training more than twelve lakh untrained in-service teachers to the NIOS through the Diploma in Elementary Education (D.El.Ed.) Programmed and the same was completed in a record time of 18 months.

The talk was organized by Dr. Poonam Beniwal and Dr. VanitaAnand.98 students of B.Ed program first year and second year attended the session.

The session started with a welcome note by the student organizers Pearl and Tanvi followed by the talk by Prof. Chandra Bhushan Sharma.

He started the talk by the importance of teachers in a student's life. He laid emphasis on teacher's autonomy and how much freedom does a teacher has in framing the curriculum and how it is executed. Sir gave various examples of the present day times to support his statement. He questioned whether the CBSE exams being cancelled and the solutions each state is coming up with are in students favor or not. He gave an example of the schools in Chhattisgarh and how the government is handling the situation and the problems that are arising due to it. He questioned everyone, why these problems do not occur in Chhattisgarh universities. He answered his own question by emphasizing the difference between a statutory and non statutory body. He explained that all the universities come under the UGC which are made by acts of parliament which makes it a statutory Body, whereas the CBSE and schools are not statutory bodies. He elaborated further that Ministers chair the school sectors. He questioned why ministers chair such bodies because a minister's agenda would be political and not educational. He questioned if it was in the favor of the country or not.

He suggested some solutions for the same. He suggested that if the country's education system has to flourish, there has to be a "School Education Commission" parallel to the UGC which should be a statutory body. The chairman for the same should be elected in the same way as the chairman of the Election Commission and should be given the same importance. He briefly explained the importance of the Radha Krishnan, Kothari Commission and the National Education Policy 2020 which was followed by a Doubt and Question session. Enlightened by the talk the students asked various questions like how we as students can help in the process, how the management of the school would be taken care of etc.

Prof. Sharma, while concluding the talk, said that school teachers and principals must have a say in the policies and curriculum because they know and understand the students better than anyone else. He reminded the students that our role as future teachers is very important because we as teachers are the initial guides of our students who will become our own reflection in future.

The session was concluded by Shashi with a vote of thanks to the speaker.
